REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

1. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Regarding claim 1, the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a network architecture supporting periodic and a periodic transmission of data comprising:

a master timing NIC configured to receive request for aperiodic data transmissions from one or more of plurality of network devices;

priority table for storing a predetermined set of priorities assigned to requests for aperiodic data, the table accessible by the master NIC; and a transceiver means coupled to the master NIC and providing a signal pathway between the master NIC and the network databus, in combination with other limitations as specified in the independent claim 1.

Regarding claim 16, the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a network for transmitting data between modules in a communications system, wherein the data comprised periodic data and aperiodic data, the network comprising:

a master network interface controller comprises a data transmission prioritization table, wherein the table comprises priority information regarding the aperiodic data, and the priority information comprises data block size and type of data, wherein the type of data comprises isochronous and asynchronous data, in combination with other limitations as specified in the independent claim 16.

Regarding claim 22, Regarding claim 16, the prior arts fail to teach or fairly suggest a method for transmitting data between modules in a communications system, wherein the data comprised periodic data and aperiodic data, the network comprising: transmitting the status message to each of a NIC modules; and storing indicator in a priority table as to what requests were assigned bandwidth on a network databus for transmission of aperiodic data and order of transmission, in combination with other limitations as specified in the independent claim 16.
